1st Annual Brussels Privacy Symposium: a great success!

On 8 November 2016, in partnership with the Future of Privacy Forum, the Hub hosted the 1st Annual Brussels Privacy Symposium Identifiability: Policy and Practical Solutions for Anonymization and Pseudonymization. The one day workshop was a great success, with presentations from numerous speakers based on selected papers. The presentations and photos of the day are now available. The Hub looks forward to continuing this collaboration in 2017.

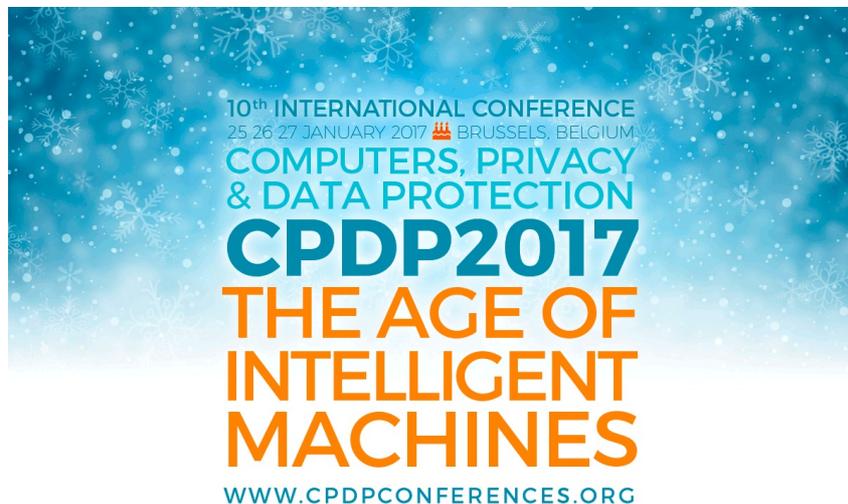

As explored in the IAPP's Sam Pfeifle's excellent write-up of the event, Anonymized? PII? What day is it?, the conversation revolved around the following questions: "Can data truly be anonymized, though? And when does data truly become pseudonymous, so as to allow for certain permitted uses under the GDPR? And what happens if the definitions of anonymous and pseudonymous are different between the EU and countries with adequacy decisions?".

"It seems the first misunderstanding is that it's not possible to use data and draw learning from it for the public interest or profit if it's personal data and not anonymized. That would be wrong. You can do a lot with personal data, provided your processing is legal, whether you have consent or another legal basis." -Paul Nemitz, European Commission

Recent Events

November 2016 • Hub members speak at Cyberspace Conference in Brno, Czech Republic

On 25 November 2016 Hub Co-Director Prof. Christopher Kuner gave a keynote speech on internet regulation and the global reach of EU data protection law at the Cyberspace Conference in Brno, Czech Republic.

Prof. Kuner questioned the limits of EU law and discussed the tensions arising from the EU and its Member States' shared competence to regulate matters related to the online environment. Prof. Kuner suggested that the EU aims at increasing its regulatory powers at the expense of the Member States. He urged the EU to go beyond its legal obligations to promote EU values and consider that internet governance is a decentralised endeavour in which different actors may have a say.

Other VUB-LSTS colleagues, including Prof. Paul Quinn, Dariusz Kloza and Raphaël Gellert, also presented at the event.

The fourteenth edition of the international Cyberspace Conference was organised by the Masaryk University and the European Academy of Law and ICT.

- 9 December 2016 • The Hub hosted a workshop on Scientific Research and Data Protection as part of its GDPR Workshop Series
- 18 November 2016 • Hub members Raphaël Gellert and Prof. Gloria González-Fuster contributed to a conference on the GPDR at KU Leuven
